REPORT TO THE BOARD

To the Commissioner of Education:

"Of all mistakes" once wrote the great Marshall Foch, "only one is disgraceful . . . inaction." The activities record of this Division during the 1952-53 year will show that we have not been guilty of that disgraceful mistake. We have tried earnestly to make every dollar voted us by the State Legislature do the work of a "double-acting" leavening agent in offering professional stimulation and leadership to librarians throughout the State, advisory and supplementary book service to public, school and state institution libraries, and special reference service to the staff of the State Department of Education. From letters received and comments heard, we have reason to feel that our services and activities have been carried on in such a way as to reflect credit on our supporting agency—the Great Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

For the second time since its early beginning in 1890 as the Massachusetts Free Public Library Commission, the name of this agency was changed by an act of the State Legislature. As of October 1952, the former Division of Public Libraries became officially the Division of Library Extension. By the same legislation resulting directly from the study and recommendations of the Special Commission on the Structure of State Government, there were other amendments to the laws pertaining to this Division's organization and its relation to the Department of Education.

Monsignor Hugh F. Blunt of Cambridge who had served faithfully and well as a member of the Division's Board of Library Commissioners since 1946 resigned in November, 1952 because of failing health. Mr. Charles D. Driscoll of Brookline was appointed by Governor Dever to fill out Monsignor Blunt's unexpired term. In January 1953, Governor Herter reappointed Richard J. Sullivan of Lawrence to another five year term as a Board member.

Beginning in October 1952, this Division took over from the Division of the Blind, the collection and circulation of large type books for children with partial vision. On special request from school teachers or nurses, these books are distributed on long term loan. In purchasing new additions to this special collection and in planning for their circulation, the Division's staff works in cooperation with the Department's Supervisor of Blind and Partially Seeing Children.

A great step forward in the state's library history was accomplished this past year with the organization of a Massachusetts Library Trustees Association. The state's 395 public libraries have more than 2100 library trustees on the boards which govern them. This State Library Trustees Association, pledged to support the program of this library extension agency, will be a powerful force not only in the local communities but in the state as a whole.

With funds appropriated by the Massachusetts Library Aid Association, a special inter-library lending project was initiated in the Merrimac Valley Area. The books purchased from this fund were allocated in several collections which are rotating systematically among the participating libraries. The books were selected and the circulation procedures developed by the Division's Chief of Book Services.

WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS LIBRARY FEDERATION

September 30, 1952 marked the termination of the Western Massachusetts Library Federation, a two year pilot library demonstration financed by a $36,500 grant made by Marshall Field III and directed by the Division of Library Extension. From September 30 until the end of the fiscal year, a citizens group known as the Rural Libraries Association of Franklin and Hampshire Counties evaluated the work of the Western Massachusetts Library Federation; studied various ways and means to continue the project; and made a concerted effort to obtain an increased appropriation to the Division so that the services and activities of the State Regional Library Center in Greenfield might be enlarged and expanded. As part of their promotional activities a booklet entitled "Good Library Service" was printed. Mr. Ralph Dunbar, Chief of the Library Service Bureau in the United States Office of Education, wrote that this brochure was one of the outstanding examples of library publicity which had recently come to his attention. Late in June, when news on the 1953-54 budget was released, it was learned that additional state funds had been appropriated for an expansion of regional library service in the Greenfield area. This is a somewhat remarkable story of group thinking and group effort. The Division's staff is proud to have had this chance to experiment and develop at ground level a flexible working general pattern for improving library service in small communities.

NATIONAL LIBRARY SURVEY

In 1952 the New York State Library in cooperation with 40 of the 48 state library extension agencies conducted a survey of the nation's public libraries. The results of that survey were announced in the New York Times of June 15, 1953 in an article by Benjamin Fine which appeared strategically placed under President Eisenhower's denunciation of "book burners". The article headline read as follows: "24,000,000 lack library service as only three states meet standards." The article was illustrated by a graph which showed the extent to which states meet the American Library Association minimum per capita expenditure standard of $1.50 for public library service.

The three states as shown by the graph which met or exceeded the A. L. A. standard were California, Massachusetts and Wisconsin. Wisconsin was erroneously credited with a per capita expenditure of $2.50. On July 15, 1953 the New York Times printed a letter from Walter S. Bostford, Secretary, Wisconsin Free Library Commission which said, "We would like very much to see Wisconsin rank first in the United States in libraries, but our honesty compels us to offer this correction. Wisconsin spends $1.32 per capita instead of the $2.50 originally reported." In other words, with Wisconsin out of the running, there are only the two states of California and Massachusetts with a per capita expenditure of $1.50 or over. We are proud to report that Massachusetts ranked first—way out in front with a per capita expenditure of $1.84 (1950 calendar year).

Statistics for the 1952 calendar year have been compiled. Our Commonwealth now has a per capita library expenditure of $2.10. The public libraries in Massachusetts during the 1952 year circulated 23,580,401 books—a state-wide per capita circulation of 5.

Though this record of achievement is a glorious one, we must not forget that many of our existing libraries are small, sub-standard institutions, so poor in materials and staff that their potential for community service is largely unrealized. This Division has a tremendous challenge in encouraging the development of regional and cooperative plans which will overcome the gap between library service in the city and country areas.

Massachusetts has an admirable past history of library service. Our educators recognize that the public library is a major bulwark against ignorance and prejudice. We are confident that the state, with its broader tax base, will provide for a program of library service to local communities which will keep us in the lead.

OUTLINE OF SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES

July 1, 1952-June 30, 1953

Information and Advisory Services

Collection, tabulation and issue of public library statistics.

Preparation and distribution of three issues of Division's News Letter and the 63d Annual Report of the Board of Library Commissioners.

Through 232 office conferences, librarians, library trustees and friends of libraries were advised on library service practice and policies.

With the placement service, 95 librarians and 94 position vacancies were registered.

Comparative statistical tables on salaries, working hours, vacation and ill time, and other standards of service were compiled for 54 libraries.

A questionnaire was developed and circulated to all public schools on elementary and secondary levels to provide a reliable body of statistics on school library service in the state.

Library personnel procedures were surveyed in all libraries in communities with a population of 11,500 and over. The results of the survey comprised background material for a feature article in the Bulletin of the State Library Association.

Several of the Division's staff members have been honored by invitations to participate in library meetings outside the State. The Director gave two talks at the American Library Association Annual Conference in New York in July, 1953. The Supervisor of Field Services addressed a Regional Planning Group in Rhode Island. The Consultant in Library Service to Children and Young People participated in a panel discussion at the American Library Association Midwinter Conference in Chicago in January 1953; and spoke at the Annual Meeting of the New Hampshire Library Association.
